Brighton High School

25 Warren Street, Brighton, Massachusetts 02135

To the Class of 1988

As the Editor of The Gothic, I am proud to present to you the 147th edition of The Gothic. In this book we have tried to capture our four years at Brighton High School. We hope that you will enjoy all the memories that we saw in these pictures. We invite you to experience again the times we had at Brighton High School. Remember the friendships that were made, the laughs and the fun that we had in the "Castle on the Hill". This yearbook will be a record of your past, of the years when life seemed so hard, but really were the best years of your lives.

We leave behind some of our dear friends who have shared our joys and sorrows. Our understanding and helpful teachers have given us the knowledge to move on and to succeed. We will leave with both a sadness and a happiness in our hearts. We will cry today, but are happy knowing that we can achieve our goals and succeed in our lives.

The Gothic Staff, would like to thank the business commmunity for their support of our yearbook. We would also like to thank our advisors Mrs. Introni and Ms. Norton. If not for them, we would not have been able to create this edition of The Gothic for you. We would also like to thank Honeywell for our Laserwriter, "Honey", which made it so much easier for this year's staff to produce this edition of The Gothic.

So dream your dreams and work hard to make them come true. Fill your life with happiness. For we the class of 1988 will be the generation to run this world. We are the future.

Senior Class Goodbye

It seems just yesterday that we were freshmen, hoping to survive in a new environment
that would begin to shape our lives.
Then came sophmore year, another year of books,
but we had a good foundation,
and we knew what it took
To get good grades and to try to do our best.
This year was quickly passing.
We had just two years left.
Soon came junior year-- we weren't seniors yet-- but our expectations were great.
We thought we knew what to expect.
Everyone was happy and we began to sigh
for we had only one year left to attend our great school, BRIGHTON HIGH .
Carrying books and slamming lockers will be a thing of the past,
And never again a day of school with seven periods of class.
Now the time is rapidly nearing for our senior year to end.
The time will soon be here to say goodbye to all our friends.
As we look back on what we have gained at Brighton High
We realize the vast horizons and careers we have the capacity to try.
Now it is time to get our diplomas and to end this chapter of life.
Still we know we cannot rest.
We must keep striving to be our very best.

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity."

Sandra Mostajo

Charles Dickens once said in his novel A Tale of Two Cities, "It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity." As I read these lines, I feel as if Dickens has just summed up my years at Brighton High School.

The best of times were during my freshman year when life seemed so much simpler. The responsibilities and pressures were few. My time was spent having fun with old and newfound friends, or getting involved in school activities. Everything seemed new and exciting to me. Experiences and adventures were just beginning.

The worst of times were probably during the end of my sophomore year and parts of my junior year. Dissappointments and reality brought me back down to earth. Life was not the "bed of roses" it had once seemed to be. I had more responsibilities and I found being able to handle them difficult. Especially trying was losing someone for whom I cared and then losing a very special friend. These losses have made me stronger emotionally

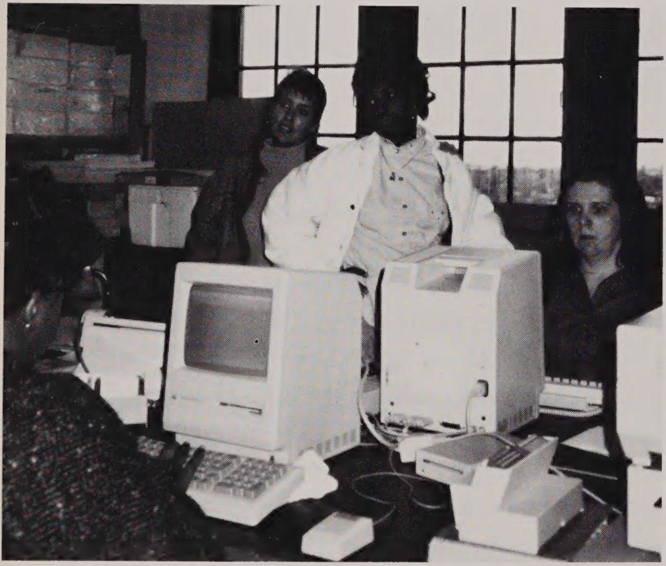
The age of wisdom spread throughout my four years at B.H.S. The many experiences I have encountered at this "castle on the hill" have taught me a great deal, such as maturity and independence. Also, learning how to get along with other students, being open minded and sharing different ideas have helped me grow intellectually. The various ethnic groups at Brighton High School have taught me tolerance and patience, which in return has made me a better person.

There was also a lot of foolishness during my high school years. Skipping classes, making excuses, always being late, hooking school, and in my case, always getting yelled at for talking in class were the fun parts of being foolish. Being naive and all too trusting was not.

When I entered high school I really believed that it was supposed to be more fun than work. I thought that everything was going to be handed to me without any real effort on my part. I learned quickly, however, that high school was only going to give me back what I put into it. I also believed in the goodness of others, in the strength of friendship, and in the benevolence of trust. Now, I believe in myself, in being careful about choosing my friends are, and in having prudence about whom I trust. More importantly, I feel that Brighton High has broadened my mind and beliefs, along with enabling me to become better prepared to face the future.

Incredulity came along with senior year. The years of wisdom, foolishness, good times and bad combined to form the sketicism we all feel as we look ahead. What is to become of us? Are we going to be successful, happy? Can we really let go of the secure past, and go on to the unforseeable future? All our doubts come together and frighten us as the end of our high school years approaches. Can we really make it out there? What about all the good friends we have made? Are we going to keep in touch? But, we take it one day at a time hoping that the doubts and the fear we feel now will change into confidence and anticipation of what is to come.

As I look back on the four years I have spent at Brighton High School, memories both good and bad flood my mind, and a feeling of sadness overcomes me. Realizing that this is not the end, but rather the beginning of a new era in our lives, I feel my sadness turn into anticipation. Now, a fulfilled smile appears on my lips. "It is almost over!" I think to myself, "We're moving on. High school has been great, but now it's time to dream new dreams, achieve higher goals, and form new memories to look back on later. We may be leaving behind a lot, but there is yet so much more to experience and to look forward to!



Lily Yin Yung

"It was the best of times. It was the worst of times. It was the age of wisdom. It was the age of foolishness. It was the epoch of belief. It was the epoch of incredulity." This quote by Charles Dickens describes the years that I have spent at Brighton High School.

It was the best of times because it was a time to make new friends, friends whom you could count on and trust forever. It was a time for preparing for college because education is apart of life; one must have it. It was also a time to have fun and spend time with your friends.

It was the worst of times because of the bad grades and the building conditions. Getting into arguments and losing friends and loved one were low points.

It was the age of wisdom because it was a time to become independent. No one was there to babysit you, because you were on your own. It was a time to learn, to take in all the knowledge you could. It was a time to make mistakes, and then to learn from them.

It was the age of foolishness because of the stupid mistakes we did make. Cutting classes for a bit of fun resulted in detention for five days. Not doing homework caused bad grades for the missing work.

It was the epoch of belief. Beliefs are not what they once were when you first entered high school. This shows that you have grown up, and the way you think has matured.

It was the epoch of incredulity. When you are were a freshman, you believed that when you become a senior everything would be great. Senior year would be your best year in high school and your easiest year. You believe that when you graduated, it would be all over. But this is not true. College will come next, and you must start all over again. Life is a recycling proccess. Your education never ends.

Charles Dicken's quote is so true in describing my four years. Whether good or bad, I will always remember the memories I have of the friends that I have made at Brighton High School, the times I have gotten into trouble, and the times I have laughed there.

Kirsten Karagosian

When I look back on my high school years I realize the two extremes. A quote from the Dickens' novel A Tale of Two Cities really says it all: "It was the best of times; it was the worst of times. It was the age of wisdom; it was the age of foolishness. It was the epoch of belief; it was the epoch of incredulity."

My junior and senior years in high school I will always remember. I had a lot of good times including when I played softball and served on the yearbook staff and other committees. A special time I will remember was sitting in the old auditorium and unexpectedly hearing my name called for an award. Most of all, I will remember the good friends I have made.

Unfortunately, along with the good times came some bad times, too. The hardest thing for me to do was to admit that I had not excelled academically in school the way I know I could have. I will always regret that.

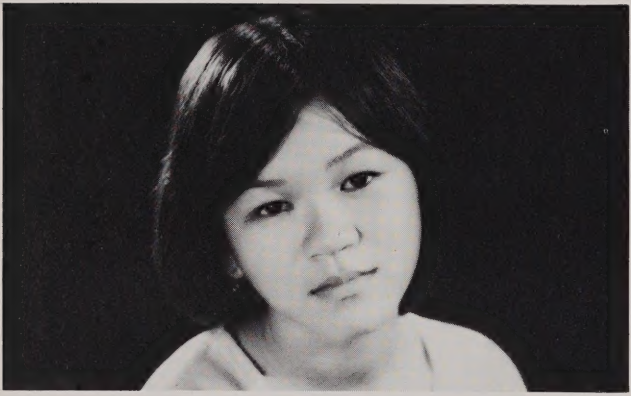
I learned a lot at Brighton High School. I learned more than just what we were taught from books. I learned to have patience and an open mind with people of different cultures. I learned to be me no matter what people might think or say. Most importantly, I finally learned there is a time and a place for everything.

Throughout my high school years I did a lot of things at the wrong time or in the wrong place. I often thought I had plenty of time to get to class after the bell had rung. Once an easy escape through the side door resulted in bumping into Mrs. Johnson in front of the school. I did many foolish things, and those of you who know me know what they were.

To me, school used to mean a diploma and I'm out of here. Now I realize there is a lot more to high school than just a diploma. A whole other world awaits me now. I used to believe that it was all in whom you know. Now I realize it is how hard you work to achieve what you want.

The obstacles I have overcome and the experiences I have had will help me with my future. I will always look back on Brighton High School and remember the good times, the knowledge I acquired, and the caring people with whom I have come in contact.

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity."



Phuong Nga Tran

Going to the prom with my secret admirer, being chased by teachers for essays and articles, being tough to the student who look down on bilingual students, not spending enough time on certain subjects, believing in friends, judging teachers too harshly----all of these are memories of my four years at Brighton High School. These years were truly "THE BEST OF TIMES, THE WORST OF TIMES, THE AGE OF WISDOM, THE AGE OF FOOLISHNESS, THE EPOCH OF BELIEF, AND THE EPOCH OF INCREDULUTY." This quoted from A Tale of Two Cities by Charles Dickens' describes my experiences at Brighton High School very clearly.

Most of the best times I have had at Brighton High occurred in my junior year. I was the kind of person who did not want to miss classes or have to make up any tests or quizzes,but I did take one or two field trips that were worth missing school. My friends and I even went to Sargent Camp where we had such a good time. Outside of school, my friends and I went to see movies, parties and dancing. Tthe nicest moment of my life, however, was going to the senior prom with my secret admirer. It was a year of enjoyment and laughter.

I think the times that I have spent in my senior year are the worst times I have ever had. Being a senior is not easy. Once upon a time I wished I could graduate right away. Graduation day I know for sure that I will say that I will miss my teachers and my friends. I might even "CRY MY EYES OUT." But am I really thinking like this right now ? No, I am not. Now, I cannot say that I will miss my teachers when they are chasing me around the hall asking me for articles and essays. Filling out applications, preparing for S.A.T, T.O.E.F.L, and achievement tests and writting essays---these are the pits. Colleges and teachers expect everything from a senior. They just do not want to give us a break.

During these four years, I have learned how to communicate with people. I have also learned how to obey all of the teachers, including those I do not like. I have even learned to speak out and to stand up for myself.

Over my high school years, I have been very foolish sometimes. I know that I am supposed to ask questions in class if I did no understand something, but I did not always do this. Other times , I did not spend enough time studying for tests. I would spend a great deal of time wondering or dreaming.

Besides my parents, my friends are the people in whom I believed. I have a girl friend who is older than I am. I consider her to bey best friend. We both have much in common. T and I have the same "SAD" feelings. We both do not have boyfriends and we are wondering why. We share ideas, happiness, sadness, and troubles.. We usually help each other to make decisions and hope that we will go to the same college. While we do have disagreements, still we are "BEST FRIENDS."

In my freshmen year, I believed that most teachers did not care for bilingual students as much as for American students. During these four years, I have found out that I was wrong. Teachers are students' second parents. They are here to train us; they do not discriminate. I know that the conclusion I had formed was only based on a personal sense of inferiority that I had. Now, I have more confidence in myself and my thoughts are not as clouded.

HEADMASTER'S MESSAGE

Juliette D. Johnson, Headmaster

To the Class of 1988

On November 29, 1983, the Boston School Committee approved a city-wide promotion policy. This policy was developed to strengthen curriculum standards and to insure that all Boston Public School graduates possess the academic qualifications necessary for higher education and adulthood. These new standards have been phased in over the past four years. You, the Class of 1988, represent the first class responsible for meeting all the criteria set forth in the policy. You have demonstrated that when high expectations are set, you possess the ability to meet and surpass those expectations.

Now, as you prepare to face new challenges, you must build upon your foundations to grow intellectually, socially and emotionally. Your dignity and self-respect depend upon your continued involvement in the learning process. We recognize that you are the individuals responsible for providing the leadership our country needs as we approach the twenty-first century. It will be only through your hard work, diligence and persistence that effective change will be achieved.

Speaking on behalf of the administration, faculty, and staff of Brighton High School, I am proud to be a part of your growth and development. I will remember your youthful exuberance with fondness. We have all benefited from the richness your diversity has brought to Brighton High School.

BHS "CITY SOCCER CHAMPS" MAKE STATE SEMI-FINALS

By Pedro Borrero & Lam Nguyen

"Together we do it, and together we win!"

With these words in their hearts, the 1987 BHS soccer team made it to the State Semi-Finals after winning round one and round two in the Boston League. The BHS soccer team played two semi-final games in Division 3 of the state championship games. The first game we played against Georgetown was a 3-2 victory. We used our best formations and starters for this important game. Goalie Erickson Cabrera made 25 super saves. Lam Nguyen broke the 2-2 tie, scoring the winning goal in the second half, to bring the BHS team to victory. The BHS defense tried hard to take the ball away from the other team and had many good passes to the mid-fielders, and the mid-fielders did their job by setting up many goals. Special thanks for this winning season go to Coach Mitchell who shared his experience and special techniques with us. Before each game, we would gather around and put our hands together to take our final instructions and scream out loud

"Brighton High Bengals".

We will always remember this period of time when we worked so hard and kept in our minds and hearts Coach Mitchell's password, "Brighton Bengals." Together we made this year the best year in BHS soccer history.

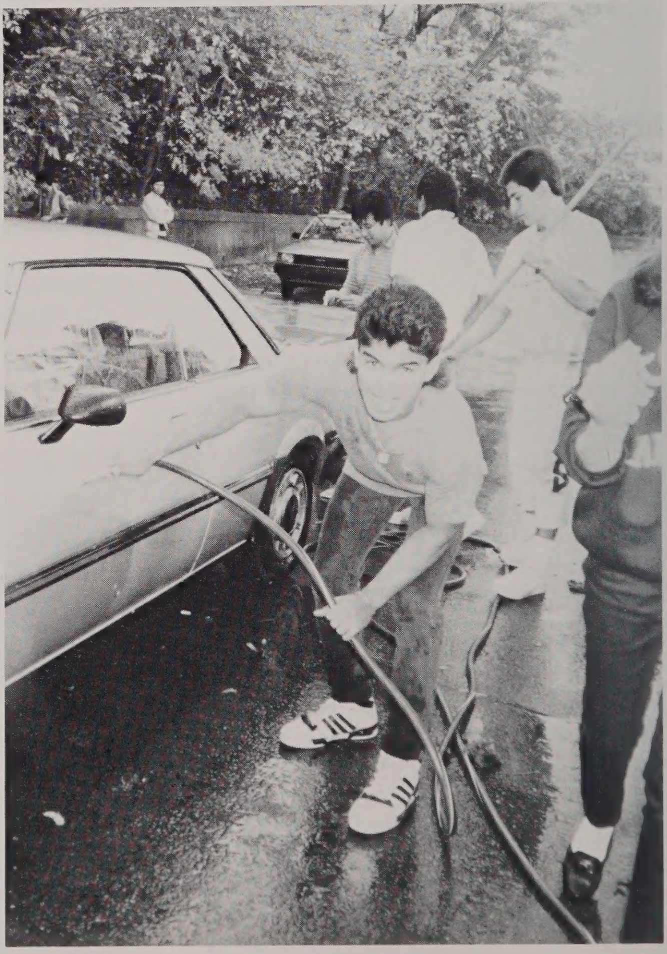
SENIORS ONLY "Twist and Shout With Us"

By Mercedes Hernandez

A room filled with girls in rolled-up jeans, white bobby socks, ponytails with ribbons, big poodle skirts and bright red lipstick? How about guys with greased-back hair, black leather jackets, hi-top sneakers, and t-shirts with cigarettes rolled into the sleeve? How about songs like "Lucille", "Tutty-Fruity", "Splish-Splash I Was Taking A Bath" and Rock-Around-The-Clock"? Would you know how to dance the twist, the funky chicken, the monkey, and the swim?

If you like the 1950's and are adventurous, all seniors are invited to party --1950's style -- at the V.F.W. Post in Oak Square on Nov.10 from 7:00-11:00pm. Refreshments will be served. This party will be our first class night, and a chance to get to know one another better. 50's style dress is encouraged. All seniors are invited. Tickets are $5.00 per person, and are available from Mr. Philip in Rm.116. See you there on the 10th.



SUDS MANIA

By Sandra Mostajo

Suds Mania struck at B.H.S. on Saturday October 24 from 12 to 3. The car wash was a great success! B.H.S. cheerleaders and soccer players, under the direction of Ms. Alvarez, Mr. Pacifico, and Mr. Mitchell, donated their Saturday in order to wash cars, cars, and more cars. The money raised will be used for an end-of-the-year sports banquet for all the B.H.S. sports teams. Suds Mania will strike again in the spring!

THE SHOW MUST GO ON

BRAVO, BRAVO, to Mrs. Maloof's Theatre Arts Class for providing Brighton High School with great entertainment, a short play titled DRIVE-IN by Richard Hellesen that roared into the BHS Library four times last week.

The scenery which promoted great anticipation and excitement as the crowd entered the theatre was designed and painted by Eleanor Chalmus, Kethe Cicconi, Maya Freyman, Louis Lambros, Marjorie MacLeod, Liana Rufo, and Bridget Walsh. Programs, skillfully designed by Kethe Cicconi, were distributed. The lights were dimmed, and the excited crowd fell silent. ACTION ! The players arrived on stage with great enthusiasm. First to arrive were Mauricio Cordero and Kim Udo. Mauricio, certainly not typecast, played the insecure boy trying unsuccessfully to impress his more experienced date, brilliantly played by Kim. The other equally talented performers included: Owen McCants who sparkled as Rob, offering sage advice to his fellow actors and the audience, David Carmichael, typecast as Chuck, a laid-back, fun-loving kind of guy, Andre Chandler as Jim provided the audience with a surperbly acted portrayal of a stubborn jackass in the midst of breaking up with his equally stubborn girlfriend Barb, excellently played by Jennifer Whitmore, and Liana Rufo as the understanding peacemaker Laurie.

The whole cast agrees---"The best thing about the play is that it was fun."

Senior Class History
1984 - 1988

Lillian Musayeva
Class Historian

Imagine a bright September morning in 1984 when scared freshmen walked up those endless steps to the castle's Gothic entrance. What would they find here? Now, four years later those same scared freshmen are mature young adults leaving through those same doors to pursue their dreams and their goals. What happend to us during those four years? What occured in the world during those 168 weeks, 720 days, and 5400 hours?

It all began in September of 1984 when we first entered Brighton High School. At first we were all nervous and scared, but after a couple of weeks we grew accustomed to our school and our new teachers. A deep appreaciation of our varied ethnic backgrounds began with the establishment in October by bilingual teacher Ms. Shepard of a successful club known as the Culture Club. We took pride in our backgrounds and our heritage. A series of flags, painted by the Culture Club, were hung in the cafeteria to represent the different cultures in our school. That year our representatives on Student Council were: Jane D'Amilio, Cynthia Hankerson, Mercedes Hernandes, Sandra Mostajo, Marjorie McLeod, Mary Noseworthy, Esminelba Santiago and Lily Yung.

Nationally, in Washington D.C., President Ronald Reagan and Vice President George Bush were sworn into office for the second term. During the elections, their major opponents had been Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro, the first woman to run nationally for the vice presidency. That spring, artists across the world joined together to perform massive concerts for the relief of world crises, such as famine in the third world countries, apartheid in South Africa, farm bankruptcy and homelessness in America. "We are the World" became the number one song world-wide.

Our freshman year swept by quickly, and soon we found ourselves in the midst of sophomore year. This year our representatives on Student Council were Donna Cerasulo, Sandra Mostajo, Marjorie McLeod, Lillian Musayeva, Mary Noseworthy and Lily Yung. In the spring, Brighton High School received a cosmetic uplift from Honeywell-Bull Corporation. Painting begun by students and teachers was continued by Honeywell workers who painted the entire building. A year later, Ms. Kredenser's famous hot pink room was repainted a dull beige color after the asbestos crews completed their work. Brighton High School was filled with grief when Mr. Bruno of the Automotive Department died in February. Mr. Introini was appointed acting coordinator. Warm welcomes were extended to Mr. Splaine and Ms. Owens, our new guidance counselors.

Sophomore year was definitely a winning season. It was the time for squishing the Miami Dolphins and "Berrying" the Chicago Bears. Boston celebrated the sweet sixteenth National NBA victory of the Boston Celtics over the Los Angeles Lakers. That fall of our second year at Brighton High School the AIDS epidemic first came to our attention . The song "That's What Friends Are For" raised money for AIDS research programs. Nationally, Vanessa Williams lost the Miss America title because of pornographic photographs that had been taken much earlier in her career. Sadness filled the hearts of Americans when they witnessed the tragic disaster of spacecraft "Challenger'. America's first teacher astronaut was killed., and we all wept. Disaster struck this planet again that year—this time at Chernobyl in Russia where a nuclear meltdown occured. Terrorism and hijacking of airplanes unfortunately became a popular trend in Europe. Other issues like royal weddings, engagements, marital quarrels and births were part of a lighter stream of news coming out of London. People constantly in the news included Bishop Tutu, Botha, Princess Di, Madonna, Prince, L.L. Cool J' and RUN DMC.

Our junior year, 1986-1987, was unquestionably a successful year. The girls' basketball team made it to the city finals. Sandra Mostajo was honored with the Commissioner Roach Award as one of the city's most outstanding young leaders. We were proud of Annie Ho and Phuong-Nga Tran, winners of the Law Day Poster Contest, and of Charlotte Rackard-Smith and Lillian Musayeva, winners of the Law Day essay contest. In a citywide Spanish language contest, Nicolette Carvil won first prize and a trip to Puerto Rico. Brighton High School also took pride in Ernie Adar, Annie Ho, Lillian Musayeva, and Luis Lambros for participating in the Boston Science Fair. This year our class representatives for Student Council were Sandra Mostajo, Mary Noseworthy, Chantha Prek, and Lily Yung. At Junior class elections held in the fall, our class elected Mia Farrow the class president while the vice presidency was split between Donna Cerasulo and Chantha Prek. School changes included a later starting time and a dismissal at 1:50, and the floor in the girls' gym was finally redone. The Brighton Banner, our school newspaper, started printing and rapidly became part of the school scene. When Mrs. Nicks of the Guidance department left Brighton High School, many students felt a great sense of loss.

In the winter of our junior year, Mr. Gorbachev became the prime-minister of the U.S.S.R.—finally someone young with progressive ideas was in power! In countries like Lebanon, Iran, Libya and Nicaragua there were lots of antagonistic feelings toward America. The madman, General Momar Quadaffi of Libya, vowed to destroy Americans. In retaliation Ronald Reagan ordered an air raid on Libya. Also, there were major revolts in countries like Haiti and the Phillipines. The Iran-Contra scandal was exposed, and American Marine Lieutenant Colonel Oliver North became an overnight sensation.

By the end of our junior year, many BHS students had been placed in summer programs at Milton Academy and at Boston University. Students inducted into the National Honor Society that year remember a moving ceremony highlighted by candles, roses, and happy faces. That summer Nicolette Carvil participated in a student exchange program to Japan. Sadly, a part of BHS was lost---the highly successful Automotive Department was closed and sent to ORC.

The year that once had seemed so very far away finally had arrived. Our senior year was here! In October we celebrated with a fabulous 50's and 60's dance at the V.F.W. Post. A great time was had by all who attended. We took great pride in all our sport teams. The soccer team reached the semifinals, and the girls' basketball team made it to the city finals. The hockey team distinguished itself in the state tournament, and the volleyball team placed second in the Division Championship.

Across the world there was a sigh of relief when Mr. Gorbachev and Ronald Reagan signed a landmark treaty calling for reduction in missiles. The Pope visited our nation in the fall. The world seemed much more peaceful after the treaty and the visit of the Pope. Elections were the keynote of our senior year. Nationally, we were focused on a pack of candidates, primaries, debates, campaign promises, and the Gary Hart scandal. At BHS we elected Lucrecia Clark president, Roberto Hernandez vice president, Jennifer Johnson treasurer, Mercedes Hernandez class secretary, and Maricio Cordero Sargeant at Arms. Other BHS winners included Lilia Musayeva who won the Jewish War Veterans Award and Joyce Jackson who was the recipient of the Daughters of the American Revolution Good Citizenship Award.

Through a grant written by Mrs. Campbell and Mrs.Introini, Brighton High School received five more Macintosh Plus computers, bringing our total to seven. Honeywell-Bull donated an Apple LaserWriter Plus to us, and St. Elizabeth's Hospital provided the printing, thus revolutionizing the publication of The Gothic and The Banner. The equipment was also used by the "Writing for College" students to produce a wide variety of documents. A room full of Wang Computers was also installed, providing an even broader base of computer skill opportunities for BHS students.

By the time this is printed, our class night, our final exams, and our prom will be a part of the history of the class of 1988. We will be eagerly anticipating our graduation. When we leave through the castle doors of Brighton High School, we will not be as scared and as shy as in our first days here. We will be confident and hopeful about our futures. No matter where we go or what we do during our lifetimes, we will always remember and cherish our happy years at Brighton High School.

The Reincarnation of Edgar Allen Poe ?

By Pedro Borrero

Edgar Allen Poe returned from the dead to perform at Brighton High. The library performance by Mel Harrold for B.H.S. English classes was excellent. As Edgar Allen Poe, he performed the poems "The Raven", "Annabel Lee" and "The Bells", and dramatically presented the famous short story, "The Tell-Tale Heart". The audience enthusiastically joined in the chorus of "Bells, bells, bells, bells, bells, bells." They were mesmerized by his portrayal of the madman who loves his neighbor but murders him , chops up the body and buries the pieces under the floorboards.

Poe also talked about his family, his schooldays, his wife Virginia and how drugs ruined his life. Poe died of an overdose of drugs given to him by a shipboard acquaintance. Just when Poe seemed to have a chance to succesfully overcome his poverty and loneliness, his life ended tragically and the world lost a gifted witer.

St. Elizabeth's Hospital Of Boston

736 Cambridge Street, Brighton, MA 02135
789-3000

St. Elizabeth's Hospital of Boston is a 350-bed training hospital of Tufts University School of Medicine, with demonstrated concern for the community it serves. Medical excellence, teaching, research and community outreach are integrated at St. Elizabeth's, creating an institution especially qualified to care for the total needs of the patient.

Walk-in Unit.

When you need prompt attention for a minor illness or injury. Call us or come in. No appointment necessary.

Physician Referral Service.

789-2138
When you're looking for a family doctor or a specialist, including an obstetrician or pediatrician, call us. We'll help you find a doctor to meet your needs.

Job Opportunities.

789-2233
At all levels including nursing, technical, professional, clerical and entry level positions.
